NO. 44.

WARM FIGHT STILL ACTIVE

BETWEEN THE WHISKEY AND ANTI-WHISKEY AD- VOCATES OF SO. PITTSBURG.

HON. FOSTER V. BROWN BRINGS SE- RIOUS CHARGES AGAINST MAY- OR WILSON-BITTER FIGHT.

For some weeks the people of the entire valley have been watching with interest the war between the whiskey and anti-whiskey forces of South Pittsburg. A saloon is now open in the town and scheme and counter scheme has been made on both sides, to maintain their position, the whiskey men to keep the saloon open, and the temperance people to close it up under the Adams law.

Hon. Foster V. Brown of Chattanooga has now entered the lists, and in a signed letter to the Chattanooga Times, makes serious charges against the mayor of South Pittsburg, W. H. Wilson.

The following resume of the charges is clipped from the Chattanooga Times: "Mr. Brown charges that before the last election Mr. Wilson, who was then a candidate for mayor, promised his supporters 'that if elected he would see that a saloon was opened in town. None had been there for four years and everybody supposed the town was under the Adams law, as it certainly is.' "Mr. Brown also charges that before the saloon was opened Wilson saw Judge McKeen's, talked to him about opening the saloon, and stated that he intended to see that a saloon was opened in So. Pittsburg, and the same thing Wilson told the attorney-general, Mr. Whitaker.

"It is further charged by Mr. Brown that Mr. Wilson furnished a portion of the money for Erwin to procure his license. Also that Wilson went Erwin's bond in some of the cases against him.

Under the Adams law liquor selling was voted out of So. Pittsburg. The last legislature passed an act providing for the extension of boundaries of the Marion county town. The saloon people claim that since the extension of the boundary lines the town has more than 5,000 inhabitants and therefore doesn't come within the provisions of the act.

Growing Aches and Pains.

Mrs. Josie Sumner, Remond, Texas, writes April 15, 1902: I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment in my family for three years. I would not be without it in the house. I have used it for growing pains and aches in her knees. It cured her right away. I have used it for frost-bitten feet with good success. It is the best liniment I ever used." 3c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by Sequatchie Supply Store.

DEATH AT TRACY.

TRACY CITY, Tenn., May 23.—D. H. Cunningham is dead. His remains were taken to his old home at Hillsboro for interment. He leaves a wife and several small children.

"THE SCHOOL MA'AM."

Despite the threatening weather which prevented many from attending this interesting domestic drama was presented to a good audience Saturday night, and comment has it that it was a very creditable performance.

Of the female characters Miss Thula Martin made Mrs. Grump, the doting mother, a prominent feature, both in make-up and acting. Misses Hopkins, Brewer and Campbell spoke their lines carefully. Miss Louise Hill as Miss Bell, the heroine, was satisfactory.

Of the male characters, the eratic school directors Underrow, Cypher and Trueblood were well presented by W. C. Hill, D. Bryant and Hugh O'Neal. Walter Hopkins as Johnny Grump scored a success; Will O'Neal as McWhack, and Will Campbell as Harmon did well.

All did their best, and when it is remembered that it was the first appearance of most of the parties, the credit given should be greater.

After the play came ice cream which sold readily.

The financial result of the evening was as follows: From play, $10.00; from ice cream, $13.25. Deducting expenses the net proceeds of the evening were $23, which will be held by the Dramatic Society, under whose auspices the play was given, till called for by the Trustees of the Town Hall for further improvement of the hall.

A Positive Necessity.

Having to lay on my bed for 14 days from a severely bruised leg, I only found relief when I used a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. I can cheerfully recommend it as the best medicine for bruises ever sent to the afflicted. It has now become a positive necessity upon myself. D. R. Byrnes, Merchant, Doverville, Texas, 250, 500, $1.00. Sold by Sequatchie Supply Store.
